

Display Board — Status Guide

What each label on the staff and display boards means, and when it appears — in the order a pickup actually moves through them.

STEP 1

9:42

Counting down

A parent just requested pickup and the clock is running. Plain numbers, no label — this is the normal, everything's-fine state.

STEP 2

Arriving Soon

Arriving Soon

The clock ran out (10 minutes by default) and nobody has tapped anything yet. Means this one is overdue and needs attention — it sinks to the bottom of the list so it doesn't get lost among fresher requests.

STEP 3

Ready · 4:12

Ready

Staff tapped "Ready" — the child is set to go. A fresh clock counts down for how long until the parent is expected to arrive.

STEP 4

READY — WAITING

Ready — Waiting

Same as above, but that clock ran out too — the child has been marked Ready for a while and the parent still hasn't arrived.

STEP 5

&¡ ARRIVED · 2:58

Arrived

Staff tapped "Arrived" — the parent is physically at the pickup point. The row glows, and a new clock counts down for how long the handover is expected to take.

STEP 6

&¡ WAITING · 6:47

Arrived — Waiting (updated)

The parent has been standing there past the window with nobody handing the child over yet. This is now the most visible state on the board: it shows exactly how long they've been waiting (not just a static label), the row grows larger and bolder, and it's pinned to the very top of the list — above every other request — so it can't be missed. This is the single most urgent thing on the board.

Delivered

Once staff taps "Delivered," the row disappears from the board entirely. Nothing more to show.
